TEMPERANCE MEETING.—A temperance meeting was held at Wesley Chapel, in South Wheeling, yesterday afternoon, which was largely attended. The meet-ing was addressed by Captain John Baggs, Mr. T. L. Noble and a gentleman from Pittaburgh, whose name we did not leave. HOMELESS CHILDREN.

Glante Into the Working o the Children's Home.

A Glance into the Working of the Children's Home.

Of all the forms of suffering that affiliet humanity there are none that argent so strongly to the sympathy of the benevolent as those which fall upon children. It is so hard to see little ones shivering with cold or pinched with hunger, or wandering about to beg for food and shelter. It is such a violent perversion of the order of nature to see children whose very existence, under nominal circumstances is a joy made to drain too early the bitter cup of sorrow and suffering, which is the accepted lot of adult humanity. Surely an institution whose object is to dry the tears of starving little once, to give them a home and its comforts, ought to find warm-hearted patrons among those who are able to do anything for the poot.

For several years the Children's Home of Wheeling has been doing this work. In that time it has become well known to a large number of our citizens. On Saturday a reporter of the Intellation of the protein the largetallon of the start of the largetallon of the start of the largetallon of the start of the largetallon of the sure of the sure of the largetallon of the sure of th a large number of our citizens. On Sat-urday a reporter of the INTELLIGENCER visited the place, corner 13th and Jacob streets, for the purpose of seeing what was the condition of the little ones now in the Home. The Matron, Mrs. Northrop, kindly acted as guide.

THE SCHOOL ROOM IS ON THE SCHOOL BOOM

is on the first floor, and to the left of the hall. The floor is uncarpeted, but scrupulously clean. A stove in the middle of the room, surrounded by a strong guard to keep the little ones from accident from fire, gives heat. A wooden bench runs along three sides of the wall, and the rest of the floor is clear. Here, Saturday afternoon, were gathered about twenty children from three to eleven sears of age. When we entered they appeared to have been engaged in some sort of play, and when the door was opened they ranged themselves on the bench and folded their arms in a position of attention. The Matron asked them to make a bow to to the visitor, which they did. They turned their bright faces to the Matron with evident pleasure at her presence, and only looked at the gistor as if they expected him to say some hig words to them about being good. They were disappointed agreeably. The visitor allowed the Matron to do the talking, and she didn't talk at the children, but about them.

The Matron explained that all but ten of the children attend the Third Ward public school. Those who remain at home receive instruction from the Matron and her assistant, Miss Hartstein. They are generally unrestrained, and live as they would at home, the object being to make the place as much like home as possible. The happy faces of the little ones told how successful the effort had been. is on the first floor, and to the left of th

THE DORMITORIES. THE DORMITCHES.

These are in the second story. One room is for the girls, another for the boys. The rooms are well lighted and ventilated, and are provided with neat, comfortable beds. Each child has a bed and an apartment in which to keep his or her clothes—the girls' being designated by letters, and the boys' by numbers. The children wear a uniform, when going out, consisting of black suits, trimmed with blue.

In the nursery we found the babies of the Home. Two little iellows, scarcely two years of age, sat demurely in small cane chairs on either side of a broad fire place, apparently perfectly satisfied with what they had seen of the world and the people in it. Even they turned with a glad smile of welcome to the door, when they heard the Matron's voice. Around the wall swere the neat little cribs into which these babies, and the little ones in the room below, are nightly tucked in—not Ty their mothers, but by another, with the tenderness enkindled by pity. In this room a nurse constantly remains. Everything looks THE BABIES. constantly remains. Everything looks comfortable, but it is plain that the room comfortable, but it is plain that the room is too small for so many sleepers. In one of the beds was a little girl who is suffering from a severe cold, the only sick child in the Home. The children are removed to this room when ill, and cared for by the nurse. Where there is a case that should be isolated from the remainder of the children, the patient is taken care of in the sewing room and infirmary, on the first floor. In this latter apartment we noticed several young girls busy sewing. sewing.

DINING ROOM.

The dining room is on the first floor, and is furnished with three long tables, graded to the size of the children. The floor, which is uncarpeted, and the tables, were scrubbed to a snowy whiteness. In a corner of the room was a large safe, filled with large, white loaves of home-made bread. Eighty-four loaves, the Matron informed us, are baked every week. The bread is always kept one day before it ig eaten, so as not to be too fresh. The pantry is at the farther end of the room and the contents are arranged upon the principle of "a place for everything and everything in its place." Each drawer is labelled, and an article desired can be found without the least trouble.

The children rise at 6 o'clock in the winter, and earlier in the summer. After washing their faces in a trough used for the purpose in the bath room they march in Handlan's Hall, South Wheeling, this evening.

MORAL REFORM.

Though the Home does a most humane and worthy work in feeding and clothing the hungry and neglected children of the city, it does not count its whole duty done in that way. It aims to save these children from the haunts of crime to which they would otherwise be exposed. For every one thus rescued the entire community becomes debtor to the Home. It does this, work by aurrounding the children while at the Home with refined and wholesome moral influences, and by placing them in worthy families when they leaves the Home. The success attending these efforts have been extremely encouraging. MOBAL REPORM.

The sermon was designed for the many who have recently signed the temperance pledge, and was an appeal to them not to trust to their own strength for freedom from the curse, but to trust in Crace Divine. The Sunday School was full of people, big and little, and full of interest. Mr. Zeveley, the Superintendent, had quite a good portrait of Francis Murphy on the black-board, as also a representation of a fort, the stones of which were marked God's mercy, care, love, &c. CAL WAGNER.—Cal Wagner's Minstrels closed their engagement at the
fair audience. The show has not given a long time. Cal is himself a good performer, but he is not a whole show in himself. A little wholesome re-organization is what is needed in Wagner's minstrels.
